

negative resistor

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2006-10/msg01175.html>

- From: "STUARTe" <jabluvs269@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 7 Oct 2006 16:46:57 -0700
-

if you look at the voltage current relationship at the input side of a voltage regulator, you'll note that it acts like a negative resistor. as the voltage source increases, the current decreases. my question is, could you get a super conducting (zero resistance) element by putting a resistor in series with the negative resistor?

.