

Re: sRe: A Must Read

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2007-01/msg00777.html>

- From: joseph2k <quiettechblue@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 06 Jan 2007 14:43:54 GMT
-

Jan Panteltje wrote:

On a sunny day (Thu, 04 Jan 2007 08:22:15 -0700) it happened Jim Thompson <To-Email-Use-The-Envelope-Icon@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in <es6qp2doki3hgik84t7lfjntuq689b9d84@xxxxxxx>:

Your chips will be cheaper here, so there is still hope. (had to add some thing to stay on topic for s.e.d).
LOL

I could care less.

Ah, got to you now :-)

Nope. I make my money from designing, not selling.

Thst is difficult to answer.
Especially as I was in a very complicated piece of soft all afternoon....
mmmm

If the price drops, then maybe you will sell more, and that would compensate, so same profit, and they would be able to keep paying you. That is a Bush idea, low export prices....
But it may not work, especially when you with the same $$$ have to buy from say Europe some things or parts, or even a new DVD player from China. Then your effective income would decrease.
Bush is not that much of a genius, (Iraq, and trade deficit show that) so it may well be disastrous.
As the US drops to the level of a third world country that sure will not improve your standard of living.

Re: sRe: A Must Read

In the long ago past US was an example, setting a standard.

These days it is the Saudis who build the big projects.

And the Chinese

And Europe is building their own GPS.

The real killer would be if Iran actually asks Euros for the oil, and the Chinese start investing in the old world rather than in Columbiastan.

:—)

China is already (and has been) dis-investing in the US and moving the investment money to South America, Africa and Southeast Asia. They are not talking about it, they are just doing it (following the lead of several multinational corporations).

—

Joseph KK

Gegen Dummheit kämpfen die Götter Selbst, vergebens.

—Schiller

.