lol.

I raced bikes for years, put thousands upon thousands of training miles in, and have heard that sort of comment countless times.

Occasionally some knucklehead would act like you talk. They get themselves yanked out of the window and their asses kicked. The driver's crying apologies and begging are always the funniest part. The cyclists actually don't really care what you say, they just like to have an excuse for the fun of your beating. Good clean fun -- you have to love it.

Depends! Around 1985 a bicyclist cut me off and I almost hit him. So I chased him down, held him and called the cops. They cited him for riding a bicycle under a pedestrian signal.

Twenty years later I'm seriously suffering from the combination of childhood polio and arthritis. If a bicyclist thinks they can make me cry they will have to do it while plugging their bullet hole with one finger.... though a Glock generally puts one completely down ;-)
