

Re: SED Posts in the Wild

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2007-11/msg03752.html>

- From: "Vladimir Vassilevsky" <antispam_bogus@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 24 Nov 2007 08:49:07 -0600
-

"D from BC" <myrealaddress@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:ro8fk35jfne9dcaa3t10ksjais6cnd2npm@xxxxxxxx

I'm nearing my 2000th post to SED!

Congratulations. You spent somewhat 500 hours for nothing.

It took me awhile to figure out why some people are on here.
My latest thought is..... for 'advertising' :)

I think people are quite conscious that they are here for leisure. The real artists can't live without gathering the admiration. Some folks are whoring here because whoring in the real life had become their second nature; not for any specific purpose.

Question is: Is it effective advertising for an electronics designer?

No. Although it leads to the small deals occasionally, it is not any effective.

Who reads the newsgroups? Mostly marginals, amateurs and stupidents; you shouldn't expect much usefulness from that sort of public.

VLV

.