

Re: what a mess

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2008-01/msg04397.html>

- From: krw <kkk@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 27 Jan 2008 21:12:18 -0500
-

In article <tnanj.1727\$0w.690@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, notthisjoergsch@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx says...

krw wrote:

In article <509nj.2805\$h11.1778@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, notthisjoergsch@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx says...

John Larkin wrote:

<http://www.wunderground.com/severe.asp>

Ain't nothing like the storms a couple weeks ago when the tool du jour out here was the chain saw.

This year we bought five cords of wood which I thought would really be overkill. It's dwindling fast, the stove runs on 100% duty cycle since early December :-(

Yikes! You do use a lot of wood! It's been a pretty mild winter here. Only once below zero, I think. Good thing, since I have electric heat.

Plus one ton of pellets. Used to be two cord plus 1/2 a ton of pellets, same house. Global warming sure ain't happening here.

Are you heating the entire state? Does the governor know you're the state's single largest contributor to global warming (forgetting the CO2)?

Re: what a mess

Oh, and it's really pouring right now.

We got about an inch of snow today. No big deal, but we went through a bunch of windshield washing fluid (looking at houses).

Find one with a big honking wood stove. Any other fuel has the potential to cause a huge slurping sound in your bank account. Some people on electric heat out here pay as much in a month as a season's worth of firewood costs us.

Pretty much everything is gas around here. They told me the apartment was electric because the gas doesn't run this far out. Last week I got to wondering about the guy's honesty. The houses he builds right around the corner are all gas.

--

Keith

.