On a sunny day (Tue, 18 Mar 2008 08:38:30 -0700) it happened Jim Thompson <To-Email-Use-The-Envelope-Icon@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in <oaovt3l85chc0muddjnib8jsgrj8mkdk@xxxxxxx>:

If you post from googlegroups, aioe, or uar, please post a test message so I can clear you in my nfilters.

It's getting tedious checking all filtered-out posts for good guy/bad guy ;-)

You probably won't see this, as I post via aioe.org, but it is much simpler NOT to use filters, especially with for example Agent or any other reader that gets the headers first, as you have to select the headers you are interested in anyways.

You now likely have posted more of those filter related messages, then anything electronics.

Else the situation you wind up with is that you have killfiled everybody else, BUT the spammers, as THOSE change config all the time.
