A big earthquake with the strength of 8.1 on the Richter scale has hit Mexico. Two million Mexicans have died and over a million are injured. The country is totally ruined and the government doesn't know where to start with providing help to rebuild.

The rest of the world is in shock.

Canada is sending troops to help the Mexican army control the riots.

Saudi Arabia is sending oil.

Other Latin American countries are sending supplies.

Re: Earthquake hits Mexico this morning

The European community (except France) is sending food and money.

The United States, not to be outdone, is sending two million replacement Mexicans.

Jim doesn't seem to have a problem with a joke that starts "Two million Mexacans have died". He must know some rib-ticklers about the Holocaust.

The holocaust was real, while the Mexican earthquake (as one finds out in the punch line) was fabricated for the purpose of creating the dichotomy which makes the joke funny, you miserable, humorless wretch.

Only an idiot with a thoroughly defective sense of humour would find that particular punch-line funny.

Only an idiot with thoroughly defective moral sense would find it appropriate to fabricate a joke around the death of a couple of million human beings.

Since you lack any sort of a sense of humor and depend on your perverted sense of morality to guide you, you're certainly in no position to tell others what's "appropriate".

Such an idiot is obviously willing to pontificate about other people's sense of humour, but if they were just slightly less stupid, they wouldn't bother – who's going to pay any attention to their opinion?

You, for one, otherwise you wouldn't have replied.

But. I could be wrong...

Unexpected evidence of insight.

You probably find humor in 9/11 or, at the very least, "It serves them right."

Back to completely wrong. There was nothing funny about 9/11, and none of the people killed had done anything to deserve it.

Wrong again; the perpetrators certainly had.

There are people in the American heirachy who should go before the International Court of Justice for crimes against humanity (which is persumably why Dubbya claims that that court has no jurisdiction over US citizens),

Most Americans in the "hierarchy" are so hated that giving an international court jurisdiction over them would certainly result in their being put to death if for no other reason than the vindictiveness of the haters.

but even that wouldn't justify a perfectly selective terrorist attack that only took them out – I don't believe in the death penaly when it is imposed by a properly constituted judicial system, and I'm even less enthusiastic about free–lance murder.

Yes, your preferred method is to talk someone to death.

As a Texan you presumably approved of Dubbya's habit of approving the execution of the intellectually challenged in the pursuit of political popularity with the morally challeged right wing voter – people like you, in other words.

People _do_ like me, thank you very much.

As for your never-ending anti-Bush and anti-Texan rant, why is what we do any business of yours? You're an impotent old misanthrope whose hate-filled rhetoric has the power to do little but annoy.

BTW, don't forget that if it wasn't for Texas you wouldn't be able to afford your current lifestyle, you ingrate.
