Ok, guys, we had a thread about NXP's site a while ago.
Long story
short I wrote to them and, surprise, they engaged in a lively back-and-forth improvement session and really listened.
They changed a lot of stuff, got rid of fluff and while not perfect yet I think the NXP site has improved quite a bit. Heck, now you can even use it with Java Script turned off (gets rid of the nag screen). And no, I am not paid by them, just got involved because I didn't want to see a company
that was good to me go down the tubes.

So what do thee think?

Looks better than it used to ! But I don't like the floaty bookmark tab on the right hand side. Its distracting !

Ok, it ain't perfect yet but at least the links in there now work. Still works in progress though, should improve some more.

Yes, improved.

But main headings don't work with Opera. (the Blue bits work fine).
Rather curious, as it's the first time I've seen Opera flinch in over 2 years use.
