This quote especially got to me:

James Randi, a fellow who is the proverbial
"180 out" from obfuscation of any kind, wrote that he had
"abandoned any doubts
that I may have had about the reality of our species' contribution to global warming."

Sheesh! Of all people!

Apparently, Al Gore is the Prince of Lies – he has the same persuasive powers as The Serpent.

You might invest an hour and review the history of evidence,
opinion and propaganda on the subject.

It looks to me like the major function of CO2 is that it allows people who don't design electronics, and who don't have much to say about electronics, to post to sci.electronics.design and pretend that they know stuff that other people don't.

John

What I see is that there is a little gang of AGW denialists among the major contributors to sci.electronics.design that produces plenty of banter and chatter in the OT political threads in this group related to AGW. One of that gang started this thread.

Why do plants have so many leaves? And why do they use such a tiny fraction of available solar energy?
