You're so-o-o-o slow John... I stopped buying Ford after experiencing a 1977 LTD :-(

The 70's were notorious for bad American cars. Apparently most US-made cars are now close to the Japanese in quality, and ahead of most European stuff.

One reason Daimler dumped Chrysler was that the build quality in Chrysler factories wasn't up to their own standards actually. And US cars can't even begin to approach European economy levels.

Re: why not to buy a Ford

What an idiot you are, Dumb Donkey. Daimler is going down teh shit-hole too.

Most likely car brand to have "infant failures" in Arizona is Mercedes.
