

Re: How you can tell someone is a pirate.

Re: How you can tell someone is a pirate.

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.design/2009-04/msg02975.html>

---

- From: Archimedes' Lever <OneBigLever@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Wed, 22 Apr 2009 00:02:09 -0700
-

On Tue, 21 Apr 2009 22:29:01 -0700, "JosephKK" <quiettechblue@xxxxxxxxx> wrote:

On Sun, 19 Apr 2009 15:35:28 -0700, Jim Thompson
<To-Email-Use-The-Envelope-Icon@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

On Sun, 19 Apr 2009 15:24:35 -0700,
"JosephKK" <quiettechblue@xxxxxxxxx> wrote:

On 17 Apr 2009 04:00:51 GMT, Jim Yanik <jyanik@xxxxxxxxx> wrote:

News123 <news123@xxxxxxxxx> wrote in news:49e7a93f\$0\$11776\$426a34cc@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx:

Eeyore wrote:

Not often
we agree
but yes, it's
damn well
time it did.
Plus I have no objection
to using
military
force to get the job
done. With the
'toys' our
boys have it
shouldn't be

Re: How you can tell someone is a pirate.

too much trouble. I'd worry
about the
captive
crews
though.
Some way
has to be found of avoiding
injury to them. On the ground
intelligence
is probably what's
needed
first.

I like toys, but I don't have enough confidence in them to believe,
that they will just make
disappear pirates.

If there's not many governments playing
together, a lot of money being invested and taken care, that not some high up people are themselves
involved in the pirate
games, there might be success.

If not, then I think this is far too optimistic.

Didn't we already hear
already about some other situations, some other
toys and some other
'shouldn't be too much trouble' statements?

Re: How you can tell someone is a pirate.

In most cases the initially estimated costs in 'solving a problem' were far off.

However I fully agree, that 'the pirate problem has to be seriously attacked' and not just with two thee 'goodwill flagships' which are merely there to show off, but which are by far not sufficient to threaten any pirate.

under a weak leader, besides the fact that it invites more shenanigans, the weak leader will not take definitive action to solve the problem, but will instead negotiate and make one-sided concessions to placate them.

I think that the real situation is indeed far worse. See this from a reliably far right publication:

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/johann-hari/you-are-being-lied-to-abo\_b\_155147.html

I presume you are jesting ?:-) Arianna Huffington is house madam and chief whore for the extreme left.

...Jim Thompson

I have some issues with differentiating the extreme left and the extreme right. They both want to tell me how to live my life and I resent it, whoever it comes from. Nor does their rhetoric differentiate them all that clearly. Just damn extremists.

That's OK, you're just a damned retard that doesn't even know how to capitalize the word I despite the length of time you have abused this country with your retarded presence.

Re: How you can tell someone is a pirate.

Re: How you can tell someone is a pirate.