To justify the bandwidth the networks argued for high definition TV before Congrss. When they had the bandwidth allocated for HDTV, they said "hey, wait a minute here - we can make lots more money subletting the spectrum for other uses, leave some open for, pay-per-view or pay-TV encryption, broadcasting more, but lower definition channels, etc.."

It isn't necessarily HDTV, just digital TV

So are we going to watch TV reruns with vertical black bars on a wide screen?

Personally, I think we are being screwed again by the industry with the help of the govt.
