took a little digging ... but managed to pull this one out of cyberspace too -- from 1997 again!

Don,

I really can't answer you today re: the details of the history of the Einstein fraud -- not in the detail you want. Few of my many files or books are at hand, and I like occasional reinforcement and reference when discussing such historical, technical and controversial issues.

Let me give you a couple of data points, that I may not have already mentioned, to give you the flavor. [I attended a great workshop on this at SLAC years ago.]

The only reason the nitwit Einstein (scatterbrained, intuitive) got published is because Max Planck was the editor of the journal in question. His stuff is nonsense, full of mathematical, contextual, logical and phenomenological errors. Planck was a darling of the big money/power autocracy in Germany. [Family connection to Siemens Corporation.] As a young man Planck was posted to the local University as a full professor, over the senior and ten times more accomplished Boltzmann —

OK. Here's the dope. Had to scare up a few books to remind me of the details.

Ernst Mach represented the philosophy that had to be put down and — associate professor Boltzmann was the man whom they slighted.

A decade or more qualifications, experience, depth and insight than the faker Planck. They treated Boltzmann like trash, as he came from a common background. Anyway, to make a long story short (try and find THIS in the physics texts) — Boltzmann went into a several year depression and finally committed suicide.

After Planck initiated the fraud of Einstein, another German 'physics' figurehead (Heisenberg) stood up and gave his complete endorsement to the Einstein-figureheaded Planck counter-intelligence. [Attendent with the bogus uncertainty principle barring study of the nucleus, and 'planck constant' smoke which disguised the actual wave continuum with quantized 'photon' energy packets.] Whole kettle of stinking fish was then mysteriously blessed by 'the Copenhagen interpretation', facade, of Bohr ... becoming 'quantum mechanics'.] After that it was rushed dead-on-arrival into a French, British, and European (not just German) steamroll of the easily led Americans.

This Quantum European League 'corpse-puscal' (to America and the USSR and the rest of the world) successfully allowed Europe to block public discussion of the wave structures of the electron, proton, neutron, atom and nucleus for the balance of that unhappy century.

How's that for epoch-making!
