There is a lot of bullshit slung around about speaker cables.

You're telling me !

If someone tries to sell you expensive wire, claiming some esoteric technology, make a rude gesture and go to a hardware store. Copper is copper (for this application, at least), so thicker is better, period.

Absolutely and the copper isn't made any better by being expensively packaged and promoted with unscientific gobbledegook.

As you VERY correctly say, copper is copper and that's all that matters.
