Considering the age of the set, I would not expect too much in the way of reliability. I would suggest having a qualified service man look at it. Most likely it has a scan and or power supply failure.

Year old big screen was working fine until a pool repairmen flipped off the wrong breaker while the tv was on. When power was restored and there is now just a blinking green light on the front of the unit.

-Upon reading the manual, the blinking green light is normal and once it stops, the unit should be able to turn on. No luck!

-Tried system re-set on front of unit, waited for blinking light to stop, still will not turn on.

-Left unplugged overnight, repeated the process, still no luck.

-Tried alternative power source, no luck.

Called for repair, but they can't get here for a week. Is there anything else I can try?

Specs:

65" Mitsubishi model # WS-65711

Plugged into Monster Power Unit
