

Re: Service Codes Needed for Panasonic TV CT27G21U Thank You

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.repair/2004-09/1846.html>

From: Dan (dpoolect_at_msn.com)

Date: 09/27/04

Date: 26 Sep 2004 17:57:34 -0700

Authorized Servicicers for Panasonic and other manufactures get the service manuals and service training at a cost. They pay a yearly subscription fee for the manuals. They pay for technical manuals and training. You want this information for free?

"Art" <plotsligt@comcast.net> wrote in message news:<F_6dndjhdtzqjMvcRVn-ow@comcast.com>...

> Or pay for a in-residence service call, telling the technician exactly what you have done and the exact model and chassis numbers. Then bite the bullet regarding the cost. That way, if indeed it needs in-shop-service the service company can supply transportation for the set, at nominal fee, and then repair the set, again at nominal fees. Sorry Gov. Don't have the slightest remorse regarding this sort of thing. Customer induced problems can really frustrate professionals in any field of service. Be it doctoring, automotive repair, et al fin. Cheers

> "x" <x@nospamyahoo.com> wrote in message news:fok5d.68\$Xc6.2252@eagle.america.net...

> >I will get the other fixed...but the problem is...I've already been into the service mode and need to undo what I've already done so at least I can watch a normal colored television until I can get the tv in for repair.

> >The off and on situation only happened one day. Since then, the television has worked fine. Problem is...the tinting and coloring was all off and I tried to do it through the main setup but it wouldn't work...so I entered the service mode and tried to match it to what I THOUGHT was my identical set downstairs. Turns out..they aren't the same model and I messed up the codes. Need to reset them. I tried to get the codes through Panasonic but wasn't able to get through. And all the repair shops keep it hush hush...they act as if they never even HEARD of service codes. This is one area...I know I can fix myself if I just had the codes. The other...yes, most definitely I will have to take to a shop for repair but I have to wait until I can find a STRONG person to put it in my car first. And there runs into 2 problems...1, my car is in the shop, 2, I don't know any strong person in the area. The person who carried the tv into the apt nearly dropped it..it was too much for him. So, I just have to wait. But, a nice picture would be very nice.

> > "Art" <plotsligt@comcast.net> wrote in message news:o8OdnZXfsbgx8jcRVn-rg@comcast.com...

sci.electronics.repair: Re: Service Codes Needed for Panasonic TV CT27G21U Thank You

> >> *Maybe you should repair the actual problems you are experiencing rather > >> than trying to fubar the set with the service only menu?? BTW: The > >> information is available via the Panasonic Service Manuals available from > >> Panasonic Corporation at nominal cost.
> >> "x" <x@nospamyahoo.com> wrote in message
> >> news:0y45d.45$Xc6.1271@eagle.america.net...
> >>>
> >>>
> >>
> >>
> >
> >
> >*