Hi,

I am re-posting this one because of a computer problem that erased some files that had a detailed fix for this problem.

My dad's rear projection TV, Toshiba TP61H60, has skewed blue only on the left middle of the screen. I remember that someone had said it was a convergence problem, but don't remember many of the details. Something about a bad IC.

Could someone please help me out with this problem, my dad is retired with very little spare money. I do have good electronic skills and a couple of years of electrical engineering college.

I can email pics if needed.

Thank you,
Tom
