

VCR dead – fuse blown?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.repair/2005-04/msg00350.html>

- From: wizzer@xxxxxxxxxxx
 - Date: 4 Apr 2005 00:34:53 -0700
-

There was a partial black out tonight. The lights got very dim for about an hour. The VCR was recording when it happened and it stayed on at the reduced energy level. Then when the electricity came back to full power, the VCR died. It has no power at all. Do you think it blew a fuse?

.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: VCR dead – fuse blown?
 - ◇ From: wizzer
 - ◆ VCR dead – fuse blown?
 - ◇ From: Asimov
 - ◆ Re: VCR dead – fuse blown?
 - ◇ From: Mark D. Zacharias
- Prev by Date: 48 volt uninterruptible power supply
- Next by Date: Goodmans VP5500 VCR Dead
- Previous by thread: 48 volt uninterruptible power supply
- Next by thread: Re: VCR dead – fuse blown?
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread