Hi Andrew, No i am working in the dark with this and as the set works fine most of the time i have not "ripped it apart yet",the fault on my one only seems to happen after the set has been on for a while,then switched off for an hour or so and then back on again when then green tinge and tearing appears.This leads me to think it is probably a heat fault or bad solder joint.I have a service manual for this and will try to scan it and turn it into a file that i can send on PC.Note i have not done this before so might mess it up ;–)

George
