

Re: What is the proper way to clean an LCD Screen?

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.repair/2006-01/msg00119.html>

---

- From: SarahT@xxxxxxxx (Sarah)
  - Date: Mon, 02 Jan 2006 09:06:57 -0800
-

windex has additives that can cause a rainbow effect on your screen.
Avoid it, just use distilled water.

On Sun, 01 Jan 2006 13:22:18 -0500, Andy Cuffe <baltimora@xxxxxxxx>
wrote:

>On Sun, 01 Jan 2006 10:04:16 GMT, Harry Hamilton <abuse@xxxxxxxx>

>wrote:

>

>>What's the best way to clean like dust off an LCD Screen without causing >>damage?

>

>I use windex on dirty LCDs and I've never had any problems. Be >careful not to get any under the edge of the LCD because it could >damage the cables that connect to the LCD glass. If it's just dusty, >then a damp cloth will work.

>Andy Cuffe

>

>baltimora@xxxxxxxx <-- Use this address until 12/31/2005

>

>acuffe@xxxxxxxx <-- Use this address after 12/31/2005

.

---

• References:

- ◆ What is the proper way to clean an LCD Screen?

◇ From: Harry Hamilton

- ◆ Re: What is the proper way to clean an LCD Screen?

◇ From: Andy Cuffe

- Prev by Date: Re: Favorite Tektronix Scope
- Next by Date: THD claims of audio signal generators
- Previous by thread: Re: What is the proper way to clean an LCD Screen?
- Next by thread: Re: What is the proper way to clean an LCD Screen?
- Index(es):

Re: What is the proper way to clean an LCD Screen?

- ◆ Date
- ◆ Thread