Hello:

We have a Sony KV32FS17 TV and are facing the following problem:

We turned the TV off one evening and when it was switched on the next day, it did not turn on. Instead the error light in the front of the TV set started blinking. It blinks 2 times and then stays on for a short period. It again blinks 2 times and again stays on for a short period and continues to do that.

We plugged out the TV and plugged back in after 10 minutes. It does the same thing again. We removed the back cover of the TV and checked the fuse near the power input point. This fuse is fine.

Can some one advise us as to what we can do to fix this problem.

We will appreciate any help.

Thanks.

Vin

set is in protection mode probably due to a short on one of the lines. you are highly unlikely to be able to solve this yourself. If the set is recent ish and had a good picture before the failure it is probably worth getting repaired, so take it to a tech.
