

Re: Repairman's knot

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.repair/2007-03/msg01437.html>

- From: "Arfa Daily" <arfa.daily@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 28 Mar 2007 08:28:36 GMT
-

"Homer J Simpson" <nobody@xxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:SgjOh.22140\$3.3034@xxxxxxxxxxxxx

"N Cook" <diverse8@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:euandh\$ui\$1@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

For tying up mains leads on equipment, tight to the back of the chassis – is the knotting process described anywhere on the www ?

Search for the UL knot.

If I'm reading him correctly Homey, that's not the knot (!) that he's looking for. I sent him some pictures of the one he wants, but apparently, no BB, so would take him about a week to d/l 9 meg of photos... I'll perhaps put the pics up on a website somewhere so that he can see them, poor boy ... d;~ }

Arfa