

Re: Repairman's knot

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.electronics.repair/2007-03/msg01483.html>

---

- From: "jim menning" <jmenningSPAM@xxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Wed, 28 Mar 2007 21:11:22 -0500
-

"Arfa Daily" <arfa.daily@xxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:25EOh.9827\$Kk5.4192@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

So to Jim Menning, and you Mr Brodbeck, if all that makes me "not a good guy", and one of "the jerks", then sobeit. All I did, as I always do, is try to help the guy. All I wanted was a civil response. It was only after the less than polite ( in my opinion ) responses that I received from the OP, that I got annoyed.

But hey-ho. Bad day now over. Tomorrow's another day ...

Arfa

I gave you the opportunity to prove you were a good guy, and not one of the jerks.

You made an unnecessary reference to "the Americans" in your response here. A more proper statement would have been that other "well-intentioned responders" were confused. Rather than drag nationalities into the equation, how about just clearing up the confusion that you claim exists? Providing the pictures to a common location could have enlightened all.

But the real bottom line here is: Did you follow up to make the pictures available?

Again, here's the challenge: Prove to us you are the "good guy" as you initially appeared to be.

Thank you.