Assuming no one knows of a UK supplier of packs of just these and not sockets plus nuts. I've run out of salvaged ones to replace the missing ones from amps, to be repaired for other reasons than just missing nuts, but cannot return to owners with missing ones.

If you contact the makers and put in a large enough order they'll supply them as spares. But it sounds like you don't want a thousand or so minimum. Other thing is to keep an eye on Ebay for bulk packs of sockets complete – and just junk the sockets.

I just save the ones from all the sockets I have replaced because the contacts have become unreliable.

Ron,

very serious comment. Any ideas how to make a totally RELIABLE jack socket ? (especially the make-break contacts ?
