Perhaps
because
audio
CD's
are CLV...

;~)

Mark
Z.

Yeah,
OK

Re: A problem with a cd player

Mark.
CLV
servo
it
is
Just
another
senior
moment.
I
seem
to
have
more
of
them
these days
...
:-(

Still,
the
rest
of
what
said
is valid.

Arfa

I knew that you knew
that. I was just foolin'
around.

mz

Yeah, I know that Mark.
Dunno. The older I get, the more this
nonsense
seems to just fly out of my mouth (fingers) ... Perhaps

Re: A problem with a cd player

I'm going
down
with some kind of early addle-brain. There's a prog on the telly next
week
about poor old Terry Pratchett. He first noticed something was wrong,
when
he kept typing spelleen misstaykes :- (I think that my problem
is that I spend too much late-night time sitting in front of this idiot
machine, instead of getting some sleep ...

Arfa

Same problem here. Gets frustrating at times. I'll stop mid-sentence because I can't bring forth a noun to continue. Then after perhaps 2 or 3
seconds
it
comes and I finish the sentence. Short-term memory getting worse also,
although in truth this has always been a weakness of mine. Still able
to
function at work though, so that's a blessing.

My hearing is getting really bad also.

With me it's early morning. I get up around 3:30 to 4:00 AM most days.

Spend a lot of time perusing old analog meters etc on eBay. Added several
to my collection lately, including an AVO 8 which I got interested in after

Re: A problem with a cd player

finding you had one. It's a Mark 5 Nato model, on it's way from Germany as we speak. Not many AVO's in the U.S. it turns out...

Added several Simpsons (the American answer to AVO?) lately as well. The guy at simpson260.com has offered to sell me his 9 remaining Simpsons. I don't think I can do that though, nowhere to put them!

Mark Z.

Old age sucks.

Big time for sure. Thirty years ago, I thought I was immortal, and could keep going for two or more days at a time without sleep. I just couldn't figure how people could degenerate into the old farts that they did. Now I am one, and I look at my daughter looking at me thinking "I just can't figure ... "

You're still young. Don't worry, as your daughter gets older, you'll get wiser. ;-)

Depends how you define "young", I guess. I've not yet reached decrepit, but certainly old enough to be waking up in the night for a bathroom stop, and waking up in the morning feeling worse than I did when I went to bed ...
