

Re: Free Energy

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.energy.hydrogen/2006-08/msg00631.html>

- From: "AKA Gray Asphalt 2" <goodidea1950_SPM_@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 24 Aug 2006 19:16:07 -0700
-

I finally get it. Taking trolls seriously is my problem, not the trolls.
Troll on. Enjoy. Find your fun where you can. You ain't a killer, and if your sense of humor isn't mainstream, so what.

"fkasner" <fkasner@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:7uoHg.12654\$kO3.1920@xx

knews4u2chew@xxxxxxxx wrote:

Don Lancaster wrote:

Gary Grundy wrote:

Well is it possible?
http://news.yahoo.com/s/afp/20060818/bs_afp/irelandscienceenergy

Finding a free energy device would be an unspeakably heinous crime against humanity. It would make Hiler look look Mother Teresa. As it would promptly turn the Earth into a cinder. You better hope and pray that this one (like the thousands that have gone before) is totally bogus.

Fortunately, here is not the slightest doubt whatsoever that this is a scam.

Exactly what type of scam (or its degree of cleverness or stupidity) has yet to be determined.

Their front end expenses are humongous.

Re: Free Energy

Best present guess is it is a stunt to demonstrate their PR capability.

<http://www.tinaja.com/glib/bashpseu.pdf>

--
Many thanks,

Don Lancaster

There ain't no free lunch but there are unmeasured forces in the universe that are in constant movement.

Any device that taps into one of these as yet unmeasured or measured forces is WRONGLY called a "free energy" device, or "perpetual motion," or some such, because it will eventually wear out.

The universe itself is a perpetual motion system as it will NEVER STOP MOVING. It constantly leaves usefull energy in the wake of it's natural movements just as an internal combustion engine leaves hot air exhaust that can be recycled for oth er use.

Te universe just isn't a device which by it's very nature will wear out through deterioration in a time measurable in human terms. Even if it did it would leave enegy in it's wake.

There will likely never be allowed into the market any such device that taps into the universal motion and power because te powers that be would lose control over the cost of power, the use of it, the money to be made on war machines to control the suposed finite supply, and control of the resulting population explosion that such a device would surely lead to.

In that sense Donny is right because the world would become a cinder BECAUSE ALL THOSE PEOPLE WOULD NEVER GET ALONG AND LIKELY KILL OFF

EVERYONE WITH SO MUCH ENERGY AT THEIR DISPOSAL.

There are otherwise no other laws of physics being broken by the use of "free energy."

Guess you never heard of the term entropy. Nor have you considered the consequences of the third law of thermodynamics. You are so stupid about things scientific that you are a constant embarrassment to everybody in this NG every time you attempt to make a comment about scientific things.
FK