I guess you could say I've sold on forward contracts nearly half a billion barrels of fuels over a 20 year period. This represents about 1/10th percent of all the liquid fuels that will be sold worldwide
over that same period.

You're just making it up aren't you ?

Re: Alternative Fuels, the Dark Side and other things...

Graham, note he did not answer the question asked.

Yes indeed. He replied with vague 'hypotheticals'.

He was asked about how much synthetic oil he actually produced and sold made with the described equipment. He answered a totally different question that was not asked. The mark of a con man.

This is what it seems like.

haha.. what would you have me say Graham? That I didn't make any oil when I've made enough to define my process totally? That I haven't sold any oil at all when I sold enough to build two massive facilities? lol. I said quite specifically what I did and how I did it and when I'd be in production.

Had you read the news in the New York Times or the Wall Street Journal, rather than here on usenet you'd be totally geeked about it.
But you didn't so, you're not. That's all that's going on here.

Then I'll ask the question again. How much synthetic oil have you actually produced and sold with the described equipment? I am not interested in your claims about other sales on your part. Once again: How much synthetic oil have you actually produced, and sold, with the described equipment? If you are not prepared to answer THIS question then you have branded yourself a con man.
