The message is simple, but if you post here involves other than on the subject of physics, or a topic closely related, everyone here will ignore your post. Worse too, if you continue to post off topic on sci.physics, it can be reported to your ISP which usually results in your Usenet posting capabilities to be totally suspended.

I would like to post about my very negative opinions of certain political candidates, but notice that I have not chosen to do so on a once respected scientific newsgroup.

On sci.physics, crackpots and politics finatics are not welcomed, and really shouldn't post here.
