You should read something before you start making claims about what is in it.

"...a small number of old, abandoned chemical munitions have been discovered...."

You're lying when you claim the report says nothing was found.

Again, you should read things before making claims as to what they say. From the same report:

"A former nerve agent expert indicated that Iraq retained the capability to produce nerve agent in significant quantities within two years, given the import of required phosphorous precursors."

You're lying again....
