

Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...

Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.geo.geology/2006-01/msg00834.html>

---

- From: "jonathan" <Write@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 28 Jan 2006 07:20:03 -0500
-

"Jo Schaper" <joschapern4ospam@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:11t1m3pfd3v9h09@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

- > From the people who brought you Christ of the Ozarks and the Great
- > Eureka Springs Passion Play:
- > The Museum of Earth History...
- >
- > <http://www.moeh.org/main/about.htm>
- > <http://www.dfire.org/x1671.xml?ss=print>

I wonder if the 'garden of eden' exhibit is nude?

But ya know, the more interesting aspect of all this is why is this movement gaining steam? They are looking for the same things we are, the answers. They're looking for simplicity and certainty, the same thing science wants. It's instinctive for us to want to know without any doubts.

Objective science and religion, these are the manifestations of our instincts, the animal in us searching madly for these elusive answers to our existence.

But a rational mind, not driven by an instinctive need to simplify, would understand the foolishness in both methods. In that simplicity and the answers are found in the uncertainty of reality. Where total system uncertainty is at a maximum is where Nature begins. It's where reality exists.

Religion isn't science, but science isn't philosophy. And without both, without a complete system of understanding where both are merged into one the two camps will continue to be mired in simplicity and ignorance. The two camps will continue ridiculing each other like children in the playground, fighting

Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...

Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...

like cats and dogs, as the animals you are.

Jonathan

s

>
> Wow.
> Jo

.

---

• Follow-Ups:

- ◆ Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...
    ◇ From: don findlay
- ◆ Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...
    ◇ From: Rick S.

• References:

- ◆ If you are ever in Arkansas...
    ◇ From: Jo Schaper
- Prev by Date: Re: questions for the bored.
- Next by Date: Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...
- Previous by thread: Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...
- Next by thread: Re: If you are ever in Arkansas...
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread