on the alleged absence of "intermediate forms" in the fossil record only to find that those accursed scientists go out and find fossils of the "intermediate forms". I suppose the next thing to do would be for a creationist to go out and find a new holy (as in "sacred", not as in "perforated") text to confound matters further.

No problem Aiden. They just list everything as new 'unconnected' forms with even more 'discontinuities' in the record.

They are 'creative' that way.
