

Re: GPS Handheld with AutoRouting

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.geo.satellite-nav/2004-07/0996.html>

From: Fred (kaufmanfl_at_att.net)

Date: 07/10/04

Date: Fri, 09 Jul 2004 21:27:11 -0700

The 76C/CS _DO_ autorouting. And it is fun using it. It has more memory for more map storage than the 60 series. Actually, the 76C/CS and 60 use the same software in some method Garmin cooked up.

In the US, an older version 4.x of Metroguide (no longer commercially available but might be in some outlets somewhere) allows autorouting on the 76C/CS.

I do not know what's what with the European mapping software. A US version of the 60/76 might not have any inbuilt routing ability in Europe but I don't know for sure.

On Fri, 09 Jul 2004 21:04:55 -0700, Carl Heinz <cfheinz57@charter.net> wrote:

>Thanks for the suggestions for the 60C/CS and 76C/CS.

>

>It appears that none of these are bundled with any detail CD's such as are available with the various Street Pilots.

>

>So it becomes a process of determining which has the features that best meet our needs and supplementing that with a European CD map set.

>

>I'm under the impression that the 76C/CS does not have auto routing, but the 60C/CS does have this feature.

>

>In comparing the prices for the various detail map CD's, Metroguide is by far the least expensive. I'm also left with the impression that I could use the auto routing features found on the 60C/CS.

>

>So, my next questions are whether this assessment is accurate, and whether there is a reason to consider the more expensive City Select or City Navigator CD's.

>

>Thanks, again.

>

>Carl Heinz