

Re: EDICT: red and blue telephones

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.lang.japan/2006-01/msg00341.html>

- From: Rolomail <rolomail@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 12 Jan 2006 14:33:22 GMT
-

On 1/12/06 0:04, in article dq4o10$noa$1@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx, "Annie" <ceo (at) fat24.com> wrote:

> "Paul Blay" <ask_me_or_get_spam_trapped@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message > <dq3i87\$9ue\$1\$830fa7a5@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> Wed, 11 Jan 2006 18:19:51 -0000
>> 2. Apart from being 'red' or 'blue' is there no >> other useful defining characteristic to describe >> them?
>
> dûqoJ—jikj 'Ô WfD<,ngY^†%ogKQfD_Bão{
> h“iSŒgW_ ^0†%one<,n,BŠ~W_
> ÆiÔ©ó«üÉne<dûq hDFnoJ]‰OX(WjDhJ,D~Y
>
> aj k Ôó-ûqo, eûq'IF(k H<^FkW_,ngY

I'm way too lazy to read those, but I recall that in 1985 public phones were color coded by how far you could call... Local, regional, national, international. I can't remember which colors were which, because I didn't really use public phones. They've got that typical Japanese amusement park flavor though. Anybody else feel like Japan is a giant theme park?

.

- Follow-Ups:
 - ◆ Re: EDICT: red and blue telephones
◇ From: Cindy

- References:
 - ◆ EDICT: red and blue telephones
◇ From: Paul Blay
 - ◆ Re: EDICT: red and blue telephones
◇ From: Annie

- Prev by Date: Re: Relationship Japanese-other language
- Next by Date: Re: EDICT: Orgies and Ozzies
- Previous by thread: Re: EDICT: red and blue telephones

Re: EDICT: red and blue telephones

- Next by thread: Re: EDICT: red and blue telephones
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread