

Re: Several pages of calendar need translation

Re: Several pages of calendar need translation

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.lang.japan/2007-01/msg00355.html>

- From: "Ben Bullock" <benkasminbullock@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 6 Jan 2007 09:24:30 +0900
-

"Sean" <sean@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:2007010512543643658-sean@xxxxxxxx

On 2007-01-05 00:23:09 -0800, "Paul Blay" <blay.paul@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> said:

"Louise Bremner" <trap_for_junk_mail@xxxxxxxx> wrote ...

Um... do you think this would have been better as private mail, since the OP seems to have given a valid email address? It's creepy enough that the OP posted these images on a public website and invited complete strangers to view them, without having further details published in this newsgroup....

Bluntly we don't know the original poster and (from a family friend) I know all too well that there are some over-controlling boyfriends/husbands out there. I just hope that the original poster doesn't fall into that category.

Let's not snoop into other people's business.

I couldn't resist looking at the calendars. They were from 2002 and 2003. You'd think that if something were going on it would have come to a head by now. If this guy isn't just jerking us around, I think this whole thing is exceedingly weird and, uh, fornicated up.

It's pretty strange stuff but I've seen much worse.

Does anybody really know that this is "his wife's" calendar? It could just be some kook or stalker who got some pages of the calendar of someone.

Re: Several pages of calendar need translation

Re: Several pages of calendar need translation

It's long past time to apply some common sense to the situation.