Salut! Alors quelques mots de description je suis une française qui aime voyager, découvrir les gens et les autres cultures. D'ici quelques années j'aurais fait le tour du monde (c'est beau les rêves! ca fait avancer) mais pour cela il faut d'abord que j'apprenne les langues étrangères.... et là j'ai du mal enfin n'hésitez pas à venir discuter, échanger quelques mots dans une langue ou une autre :) D'ailleurs je vais me mettre au finnois. So if you want to talk : I'm here !

Although, it seems to be a cliché , I do really like reading books and travelling as it's linked to my inquisitiveness in a positive sense I hope :) It is said that a person has as many souls as many languages she/he can speak , so for the time being I've already had two Polish and English. I've started to learn Dutch but I can't manage to find time for it temporarily.Do really hope to continue it during holidays.As I think that getting to know a person well, is a kind of adventure, I leave the rest of my vices for later.:)

Mimi Jii, 27 years old, Finland
I know : Finnish
I want to learn : English, Italian

Hei-hi-ciao! i'm a finnish art student. my english isn't very fluent, so there's always room for some practice.

with italian i'm a total beginner. have studied it by myself for some time now and because i'm a little lazy it has been difficult... learning italian has been a long-lasting dream for me and although i can't even say much in it, i'm sure this time my attempts to study will do some results too.

if you need any help with finnish – feel free to ask! i would love to do my best helping or teaching you.

arts and crafts are my main interests. also enjoy reading and flea markets and spending time in the internet.

Kristoffer , 15 years old, Denmark
I know : Danish, English
I want to learn : French, German, Chinese (Mandarin), Japanese

I'm a 15 year old boy from Denmark, yup not very old. I, of course, speak Danish fluently, but my skills in the English language are also good. In my own opinion I speak it fluently as well, even though I am still learning some grammar (Just commas actually).

I have studied French for one year, so I know the basics of the language, but I want to learn more so I will be able to speak the language if or when I am on vacation in France. To be honest I don't have any great reason to learn the language, in some way it has just always appealed to me.

I am also studying German in my school, but my skills there are not something to brag about!

We need Language Exchange Partners, we can teach you our native languages

Chinese is just something I wish to pick up later on, whenever I get the chance. So I can't speak a single word yet.

I want to learn : Italian, French, German

Hello, I'm Stefanie.
I live in the Dutch speaking part of Belgium, I'm 19 and I'm studying Greek and Latin at university.
I'm also interested in modern languages: I learnt French, German, English and a little bit of Italian. I'd like to practice some Italian and German because I don't master these languages as well as I would like. I'm almost fluent in French, but I don't have any practice anymore so French chats are also welcome, I'd like to keep my French up-to-date.
