I agree.

my point was that this device could not be so easily employed in "Neo-Arabic" – without case endings.

other hand separating 3allh from Rasu:l could also show subordination. I believe it needs more discussion since as Yusuf pointed out it could lead (if not not to blasphemy because the Prophet is not the same as God) but at least to putting the prophet and Mushriku:n on the same that would be very blasphemous.

level when the case ending is left out. The word Rasu:l completes or seals the statement.
