Obviously, running away and fearing are the most closely related notions.

Therefore, the starting ur-word for fleeing and fearing (or better flinching) was BELGON (Bel /sun god/ + GON /drive, move, go/); Belgon derived later to Balkan/ Vulkan and VALJANJE (wallow, Gr. $\text{2}\pm\gg\text{É}$ I throw; hence ballistics; Serb. OBALITI throw an object down the coast /Serb. OBALA coast/). Above mentioned VALJANJE (BALJANJE, wallow, waltz) is the one form of the basis BELGON; the other one is the Serb. POGON (propulsion, from POLA }ENJE, POLAZAK, POLAZ outset, beginning, Lat. PULSE), Greek $\text{2}\pm\text{3}\grave{\text{I}}\text{1}\text{2}\text{1}$, Eng. wagen, Eng. BEGIN.

Next time:

What is the relation among the Greek $\text{2}\pm\text{3}\grave{\text{I}}\text{1}\text{2}\text{1}$, English WAGON, BEGIN and Serbian POGON and PO ETAK (begining)?
