Look at the following Abdullah's stupidity: "common Illyr. -gW- => -b-, -d- : Alb. -gW- => -d-" and "Lat. - Italic gw- => v- phonetic mutation"!

Latin agnus (lamb) is agnus and it is not related to ovis (sheep) at all unless we are trying to talk about kinship among sheep and lambs. ;-)

Are you guys all okay? Are you such dullards that you are unable to understand the most elementary (simplest) things?

Aqua (*akWa-) could not be change into 'apa' or vice versa. Why do you let Abdullah, Lubotsky and G. Starostin to pound that Squip-Illyrian crap into your "intelligent" heads?

Why would not you start to use your brains: Latin 'lana'; English wool, fleece; Slavic 'volna' /vlna, vuna/; Greek ±²¿ »»± thick woollen cloak; À¹»¿Â wool made into felt; Latin 'vellus' wool', 'fleece'; Serbian 'ovan' (ram) is a shortened form of 'ovlan' (Bel-Gon basis; similar to the name of Serbian 'bik' from 'bulog'; cf. English bull and bullock).

You all seem to be suffering the lack of confidence or you have acquired an incurably "false-authority syndrome"? What a pity! Intellectual laziness always preferred assumed knowledge; it is much easier...

Note: Celtic Illyrian concordances: common Illyr. -gW- > -b-, -d- : Alb. -gW- > -d-phonetic mutatIon. Lat. avillus lambkin because of the suffix formation not to ovis, but from *agWhnelos. Note: common Lat. - Italic gw- > v- phonetic mutation] Lat. avillus (*abillus) lambkin : Rom.(*agWenus) ageamiu lamb .
