

Re: Alan Turing's Halting Problem is Incorrect (FINAL PART)

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.logic/2004-07/1132.html>

---

From: Peter Olcott (olcott\_at\_worldnet.att.net)

Date: 07/09/04

Date: Fri, 09 Jul 2004 12:33:49 GMT

> *However, instead of being on your side where I would like to be, you > have convinced me that you are 1) a kook for having a kook dogma, 2) a > troll for attempting to promote that dogma by devious means, though > *maybe* unwitting, and 3) intellectually unfit to conduct your side of > this debate *regardless* of merits. E.g. you keep missing your debating > points like a person unqualified to make the argument or more > interested in discussing a hidden agenda.*

>

> *What you say above about playing to win only reinforces this. You > are *obviously* playing to win too, but are simply not qualified and/or > more interested in discussing your dogma than winning the trivial > Halting Problem argument. That is why you claim not to be playing to > win.*

>

> Larry

> From my point of view (and this might not be an accurate representation of actuality) you are just another mean person.