This is a classic Internet article that is often cited in discussions
here.

Especially by its author Charlie-Boo.

You're just jealous. What have you authored?

Instead of coming back at him with ad hominem,
why don't you simple point out instances when others have cited your work to bring more clarity to an issue and not to draw attention to its inadequacies?

As far as I can tell he made a factual
statement. Do you care to dispute it?

You've only posted 7 messages in your entire life (according to your profile), so what do you know?

Honestly, did you even read my paper? Yet you're critiquing it??
HA!!

Re: Need help to answer a boy genius.

I have not critiqued your paper.

Since you didn't say anything with regard to my question I take it that you agree that the only reason why your paper is often cited is due to your promotion it and not the result of general interest.
