

Re: Choice of programming language

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math.num-analysis/2006-03/msg00212.html>

- From: Dan Nagle <dannagle@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 16 Mar 2006 01:19:10 GMT
-

Hello,

Michael Hennebry wrote:

<snip a bunch>

That said, C/C++ allows at least one optimization that is difficult to do in FORTRAN: aggregating data of different types. Parallel arrays could double your cache misses and require an extra register. This could have changed. It's been a while since I used FORTRAN.

Things have changed, Fortran (note spelling) has had user defined types for 15 years now.

<snip the rest>

--

Cheers!

Dan Nagle
Purple Sage Computing Solutions, Inc.

.