

Re: What is the mathematics behind districting?

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.math.research/2005-11/msg00023.html>

- From: israel@xxxxxxxxxxx (Robert Israel)
 - Date: 6 Nov 2005 20:19:40 GMT
-

In article <u%Laf.9726$D13.1768@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, Chris Pollett <cpollett@xxxxxxxx> wrote:
>This Nov.8 in California there is going to be a special election in >which one of the ballot initiative (Prop 77) concerns how district lines >are drawn. This got me thinking about whether there is any mathematical >way of saying one has drawn district lines reasonably?

See e.g. <<http://www.valpo.edu/mathcs/ResearchPapers/gerryandtables.pdf>>

Robert Israel israel@xxxxxxxxxxx
Department of Mathematics <http://www.math.ubc.ca/~israel>
University of British Columbia Vancouver, BC, Canada

• References:

- ◆ What is the mathematics behind districting?
◇ From: Chris Pollett
- Prev by Date: Re: What is the mathematics behind districting?
- Next by Date: K^ and K/\mathbb{Z}*
- Previous by thread: Re: What is the mathematics behind districting?
- Next by thread: Quantum Mathematics at UCR
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread