

Re: NUMB3RS, Grobner bases, and "Trust Metrics"

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math.symbolic/2007-10/msg00020.html>

- From: Raphael Jolly <raphael.jolly@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 02 Oct 2007 13:48:17 +0200
-

rjf wrote:

After posting that note, I found out that you can see the whole show at <http://video.aol.com/video-category/numb3rs/2995>

You might not find it as interesting as, for example, something I posted on youtube

<http://youtube.com/watch?v=0jw1W9RuIEk>

The connection to sci.math.symbolic being that I post in both places.:)

Yes, I prefer the latter, even though Groebner bases are not involved.

Another real-life domain where these can be used is in solving sudoku:

<http://www.cs.amherst.edu/~dac/lectures/gb2.handout.pdf>

Raphael

.