

Re: Are all changes in velocity acceleration

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2004-07/6090.html>

From: Creighton Hogg (wchogg_at_hep.wisc.edu)

Date: 07/23/04

Date: Fri, 23 Jul 2004 10:34:48 -0500

On Fri, 23 Jul 2004, Alex Hunsley wrote:

> The Ghost In The Machine wrote:

>

> > In sci.math, Eric Gisse

> > <fsagg@uaf.edu>

> > wrote

> > on Thu, 22 Jul 2004 18:37:20 -0800

> > <heu0g0hasc35ojltg6c15i429rhqugec5q@4ax.com>:

> >

> >> On 22 Jul 2004 08:38:13 -0700, dcshead@charter.net (Donald G. Shead)

> >> wrote:

> >>

> >> Yes.

> >>

> >> Christ, learn some calculus.

> >

> >

> > An interesting command, since Jesus pre-dated Newton and Leibnitz > > by over a millennium....

> >

> > :-)

>

> Calculate the miracle volume if a point-source saviour, moving at 5 furlongs a > second, encounters a incontinent crippled man who is executing brownian motion

>

>

> [5 marks]

I'm sorry but I find it somewhat sacreligious to assume a spherical Jesus.

:P