Hi,

Recently i wrote a paper, but i have discovered an error in one of my proofs. Unfortunately, a lot of the results and conclusions i made were based on that erroneous proof, so there's not much good about the paper left.

I'm not sure what to do... can I still make adjustments to the paper once it has been published, perhaps to the online version? Should i leave it the way it is, and hope that noone reads it? ...

I need your advice

Thanks
Geoff
