

Re: Threats -- Who is this jerk?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2005-02/3997.html>

From: Geo Incog (incog_at_incogxyz.com)

Date: 02/11/05

Date: Fri, 11 Feb 2005 10:13:45 -0700

>>>>>>> Does anyone know who this jerk is who sent me threatening >> emails?
>>>>>>> I have forwarded his messages to the FBI.
>>>>>>>
>>>>>>> *Small world. I am pretty sure I used to work with him. He is a >>> nuclear >>>>>>> physicist, worked on a military nuclear submarine and in power >>> plants,
>>>>>>> went into programming, and he is a very entertaining, party
> animal
>>> and >>>>>>> a likable guy. He is in his low 40's now, he has a beard, he >>> developed >>>>>>> severe back and shoulder pains in his mid 30's, he used to call
>>>> himself
>>>>>>> Wild E. Coyote. The newsgroups fucked him up mentally. Its two >>>>>>> personalities. He is the coolest happiest smartest guy out of >>>>>>> newsgroups,
>>>>>>> and in my opinion he is disturbed from the Internet, simply >> because >>> he >>>>>>> cannot relate to this macho environment. He is normal. He is.
> Its
>>> just
>>>>>>> anger from his inability to express himself.
>>>>>>>
>>>>>>> He raises his son alone. He submitted himself to a secret online >>>>> character >>>>>>> that... went out of the ordinary. Why does the Internet create >> secret
>>>>>>> characters? I know him. He is really cool. I don't get it.
>>>>>>>
>>>>>>> This really interests me! I think this is what its all about:
>>>>>>>
>>>>>>> The internet can easily turn into a giant holodeck. The "holodeck >>>>>>> rooms of pain". One expects it to be miraculously the holodeck of* sci.math: Re: Threats -- Who is this jerk?

> > > > love, but instead it turns into a giant holodeck of pains and > torture.
> > > > *And once perceived like that, then, that's the only way one
> continues*
> > > > to sees it. Unreal. Just unreal.
> > > >
> > > > And now, I make a wakeup sound with my two fingers,
> > > >
> > > > and everybody is back to normal.
> > >
> > > He was "the animal" in the Halloween Party.
> > > We worked for BAAN, a company in Holland.
> > > I loved that guy!
> > > We had a party room of 5 programmers, we listened to > > > Dire Straights at work. We had a bald intern programmer.
> > >
> > > There is nothing wrong with him. People are people. The internet > > > is not party. And it gets confusing, that's all. I've been in that > > > confusion. So was my brother, and many of my friends.
> > >
> > > You cannot get in contact through the monitor, and it creates > > > confusion, that's all. Some people need that personal atmosphere > > > to stay sane. I am one of them.
> >
> > My brother fell in love with a Russian (Georgian) girl through the > > Internet, and ended up having a fight on the Internet with the entire > > Georgian mafia, but that's another story. The Internet can be fun.
>
> Let me just conclude, with honesty, I know him, I wouldn't worry > if I was you. Its up to you if you wanna be scared of him. I wouldn't.

I love that man. He creates smile, and happiness, and party. He was fun to work with. That's him. Just that. The rest is voodoo. And forget him.