

Re: What is Truth?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2005-03/3255.html>

From: Jim Spriggs (jim.spriggs_at_ANTISPAMbtinternet.com.invalid)

Date: 03/09/05

Date: Wed, 9 Mar 2005 23:37:52 +0000 (UTC)

Hero wrote:

- >
- > Poor Bob,
- > in what a world You must live in, that You
- > even have doubts about Your own senses.
- > It must be a world full of lies and deception,
- > leading You not only believing in a God,
- > which is playing cruel tricks on You,
- > but also loves this.
- > I hope for You, that You don't have to
- > participate.
- > There's a simple remedy, it's called
- > experiment and it gives You truth.
- > No, not thought-experiment, actually
- > one has to use his hands.
- > Just lit a candle and put Your finger
- > in the flame(fire) and then go on with
- > Your ideas about Your senses decieving
- > You....
- > Good luck
- > Hero

Here's another experiment: wear a hat that's too small for you, take the hat off and continue to feel that you're wearing it. Of course our senses deceive us; they so all the time.