

Re: JSH: Move over reality TV

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2005-03/7502.html>

jstevh_at_msn.com

Date: 03/21/05

Date: 21 Mar 2005 15:41:09 -0800

Mike Headon wrote:

> James, I moved over to sci.math just to keep reading you (now that > sci.skeptic has fallen to the storm troopers). You are the best thing > since Earl Gordon Curley! Keep it up!

> --

> Mike Headon

>

Uh, who is Earl Gordon Curley?

In any event, I do admittedly try to have some entertainment aspect to at least some of my postings, as math can be a dry subject, though the way things are crackling over my research, maybe there doesn't need to be much added.

Ultimately though the bulk of the attention I get is because there is quite a bit of evidence that there's something to what I'm saying, and math people, including mathematicians, aren't behaving the way they're supposed to behave.

And people know the history of discoverers, especially highly creative and quirky discoverers, who run into a wall from the establishment, when they are right, so there's the excitement of real history playing out.

And I like to give people ways to test whether or not what I'm saying is true, so I'll take this moment to add that I have an applet that you can run for yourself to count primes at my new Yahoo! Group:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/myprimecounting/>

Then you can see for yourself how fast it is.

James Harris