

Re: JSH: Interesting behavior

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2005-04/msg03227.html>

- From: "Russell" <russell@xxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 21 Apr 2005 13:31:19 -0700
-

Jim Spriggs wrote:

> jstevh@xxxxxxxx wrote:

>>

>> ...

>>

>> He may no longer be in the same world as you and I, along with much of

>

> "you and me" surely? It would be in British English at least.

No. In this sentence, "as you and I are" is an implied clause whose verb has been omitted. So the nominative case is correct.

(Yes, many people who IMHO should know better do often say "x and I" instead of "x and me" in situations where the latter is correct. One of my pet peeves! But this is not an example of such.)

• Follow-Ups:

◆ Re: JSH: Interesting behavior

◇ From: Gib Bogle

◆ Re: JSH: Interesting behavior

◇ From: Jim Spriggs

• References:

◆ JSH: Interesting behavior

◇ From: jstevh

- Prev by Date: Split or Irreducible
- Next by Date: Re: Split or Irreducible
- Previous by thread: Re: JSH: Interesting behavior
- Next by thread: Re: JSH: Interesting behavior
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread