

Re: twin prime conjecture

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.math/2006-10/msg02852.html>

- From: "Gene Ward Smith" <genewardsmith@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 11 Oct 2006 00:10:48 -0700
-

larry.freeman@xxxxxxxxxx wrote:

Hi Gene,

Thanks very much for your comment. I need to review the Hardy-Littlewood conjecture to better understand it.

The conjecture is that the mean density of twin prime pairs $(n-1, n+1)$ is $C2/\ln(n)^2$, where $C2$ is a numerical constant of approximately $2/3$, the Hardy-Littlewood constant.

<http://mathworld.wolfram.com/TwinPrimesConstant.html>

.